

TOP VIEW

PLAN

ELEVATION

SIDE VIEW

SECTION

SHAYNA SPENCER
CAPSICUM PHOTOGRAPHS
1908ENG AT4
TUTOR: LIZZ

TOP VIEW

PLAN

ELEVATION

SIDE VIEW

SECTION

SHAYNA SPENCER
CAPSICUM SKETCH
1908ENG AT4
TUTOR: LIZZ

Buon Appetito!

Why we just can't get enough of Italian food.

"For Italians, cooking and sharing food is no less than a way of life. Whether it's at home with friends, in a humble trattoria, or a fine-dining restaurant, wherever it's eaten, it's always based around fresh, seasonal produce, which is one of the many reasons it's firmly woven into our national culinary culture here in Australia."

SHAYNA SPENCER
MAGAZINE ARTICLE
1908ENG AT4
TUTOR: LIZZ

Spaghetti bolognese is now so popular that it could be classed as our national dish, although an authentic Italian version would be fettuccini al ragu. Italians were among the first to show us how to appreciate good coffee, use olive oil for cooking rather than medicine, embrace garlic, and understand the joys of fresh pasta and basil.

Many ingredients are used across the country, with some more in certain regions of Italy than others. Broadly speaking, Italian food centres around butter, meat, potatoes, pork, Parmigiano, and other types of cheese, while Southern cooking is more focused on olive oil, tomatoes, eggplant, capers and fish. Some key Ligurian ingredients include fish and seafood, prosciutto, sausage, salami and truffles. Above all, Italians believe in simplicity and respect for good produce, so some most beloved dishes comprise of just a few simple ingredients, selected carefully and served at their prime. Buono!

(Better Homes and Gardens 2023, 24)

THE BUILDING BLOCK
SCALE 1:1

SHAYNA SPENCER
AT4.-W2 1908ENG TUTOR:LIZZ

TOP VIEW

PLAN

EAST ELEVATION

SECTION

SOUTH
ELEVATION

GROUND FLOOR PLAN

1:50

SECTION

1:50

SHAYNA SPENCER
TUTOR: LIZZ
1908ENG:AT4

FIRST FLOOR PLAN

1:50

WEST ELEVATION

1:50

